LITERATURE-FOR-CHILD
SEMINAR SET AT UNIVERSITY

MISSOULA--

The University of Montana Department of Home Economics is offering an evening extension seminar dealing with literature for children during winter quarter on the University campus.

The course, entitled "Creative Experiences for Young Children," with emphasis on literature, will be taught by Sudie Mason, an assistant professor of home economics at UM. Three graduate or undergraduate credits may be earned for the course, which is listed as Home Economics 490.

The first meeting of class participants will be at 7 p.m. Jan. 19 in room 203 of the University Women's Center. Regular class meetings will be scheduled at that time. Mrs. Mason said the course will include a study of different types of literature and their various uses for children from two to eight years of age.

Included will be reading to the child, the use of poetry, story-telling and dramatic activities, and other content that may be of specific interest to participants.

Those interested in the course but who are unable to attend the first class meeting may phone 243-4841 or 243-5221 for more information.
